Warren Burgess, one of THE CITIZENS' carriers, is minus bridle and saddle. Yesterday he attended the fair, riding to the grounds on his horse, which he tied to the outside. On coming out of the grounds to come over home, he was surprised to find that his horse was gone. A search failed to find the animal, but late in the evening the horse came to his stable without saddle or bridle, which were stolen, and the horse turned loose to go home.

The Guards' ball was indeed one of the most events of the week, and was largely attended. The Guardsmen popular with our citizens, and the more men that they intend giving a ball is sufficient to bring out a good crowd. The dancing was excellent and the music, rendered by the orchestra of the Second Cavalry band, was above comment; it was perfect.

The convocation of the Episcopal church adjourned this morning. Some important business was attended to, and the bishop's address and the reports from the various missions indicate a prosperous and promising condition of the church in the jurisdiction.

ROYALLY ENTERTAINED.

The Hooks Show Courtesies to Visiting Firemen.

Last evening the doors of the reorganized Shefield hook and ladder company were thrown open to the visiting firemen and a jolly good time was had. First class Albuquerque brewed beer, and with clear Havana filled cigars were passed around among the visitors, who demonstrated by their cordial hand shaking that they were pleased with the manner in which the Hooks were entertained.

A Big Strike.

Hon. Sam Baldwin, the only mining man of Santa Fe county, is in the again.

Chief Keifer, of the El Paso fire department, was also present and spoke of the generous hospitality displayed by the boys of the local department. Songs were sung by Judge French, Coyle, Kourtman and Osterman of the Pinscotts, while Ed. Lawrence, of El Paso, captivated the crowd by singing several humorous songs. J. F. Coyle, of Pinscott, had composed a song entitled "Bring Back That Belt," and he brought down the house by singing it. Chief Keifer, Timmons and others of the home crowd delighted their visitors and their friends by rendering in a pleasant manner several popular airs.

First Assistant Foreman Boyd, Second Assistant Arntzen, Secretary Carey and Hoskman Cundiff, Jacoby, Hy. Kohler, McLean, Harsh, Einne and others of the Shefieldis did the honors in great style, admirably assisted by Joseph Farr, Frank Cramer, Billy Mason and Secretary Rogers of the Scotts.

Just before the crowd broke up in order that the visitors might prepare themselves for their departure to their respective cities, the captains of the visiting fire companies got together and prepared the following card, which they requested published:

To Shefield Hook and Ladder company: We the following hose teams desire to express our hearty thanks for the hospitable way we have, one and all, been treated during our stay in Albuquerque attending the fair. Our best regards will always be for the welfare and prosperity of the good hearted Foremen and his boys of the Shefield Hook and Ladder company who royal entertained us.

The Mounted Drill.

The battalion of regular cavalry, embracing troops G and H, of the Second regiment, which has been in camp in the city all of the week, gave an exhibition mounted drill at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon under the command of Major James Jackson. The troops were commanded by Capt. J. H. Wheaten, Lieut. A. L. Harrison and Lieut. Suples. Lieut. F. D. Irwin acting as adjutant. Although the space within the fair ground enclosure was limited to make it convenient to perform battalion evolutions by so large a mounted force, the movements of the three splendidly drilled and disciplined regular troops in the different evolutions at a walk, trot gallop and the charge, elicited cheers from the great crowd and many sincere compliments from numbers of old veterans cavalrymen among the spectators, who carried the "white weapon" during four years of active warfare. While all the officers performed their duties perfectly during the drill, the non-commissioned officers and privates are entitled to high praise for the intelligence and good discipline that they displayed in obeying all orders and in the control of their horses, and especially in their style of riding and appearances.
